

— Let's be honest

A major pillar of adulthood is radical self-honesty.

If you're sincerely honest with yourself:

The strongest version of you doesn't justify weak results.

The strongest version of you doesn't hide behind ignorance or misunderstanding.

The strongest version of you doesn't tolerate the same unworkable nonsense.

The strongest version of you doesn't watch porn.

The strongest version of you doesn't show up apologetically.

The strongest version of you doesn't whine.

The strongest version of you doesn't virtue signal.

The strongest version of you doesn't seek pity.

The strongest version of you does fight for your life.

The strongest version of you does face reality.

The strongest version of you does focus on what matters.

The strongest version of you does bracket your case.

The strongest version of you does generate powerful outcomes.

The strongest version of you does confront your actual numbers.

The strongest version of you does deal with what's in front of you.

The strongest version of you does hold frame.

— Dusan Djukich